

I feel very blessed every morning especially when I realize that I am a resident of Springhill. Yes, I can say that I wish that we had moved here 8 years earlier. When we realized that we needed more help, we began looking around and discovered many nice places in the Erie area but also it became very apparent that Springhill was soon to be our new home.

When I retire for the night, I feel safe, secure and truly loved. Even though, I am alone, I don't feel alone. I open my door and hear the ping pong of laughter, the laughter of groups walking back from breakfast, the excitement of those who are hurrying to get to an activity on time.

We all have our challenges but it's nice to see people not dwelling on their situation but working hard to accept and improve their lifestyle, through exercising, playing games, reading, attending movies, and helping each other Striking appeals to me as I walked through the halls are the smiles of all the staff, and the residents. The staff is always there to help you. They never seem too busy to care.

I do wonder what heaven will be like but I feel that living here at Springhill is awful close!

a purpose for getting up in the morning*
